In a codicil, dated Sept. 16, 1950, the priest directed that Marie F. Ryan, 912 North 64th street, Phila., should inherit $1,000.

The testator-priest directed that in case his sister and brother were not living his estate should be distributed as follows:

YARDLEY, Mar. 27 — A number of kind-hearted residents here organized a permanent organization last night to aid the courageous Mrs. Eugene Wnuk, a multiple sclerosis victim. The group immediately mapped plans for two benefits designed to raise funds to help finance Mrs. Wnuk's fight for recovery.

She now is in Jefferson Hospital, Philadelphia, undergoing a series of tests preparatory for the start of extensive treatments.

Her husband, employed by C. V. Hill Co., Trenton, N. J., has been stricken shortly after their marriage in 1944. The couple's finances have been drained in attempts to halt the usually fatal disease.

Meeting at the home of Mrs. Conrad Baldwin, Westover road, Morrisville, representatives of five Yardley churches and all community and civic groups agreed to sponsor a benefit concert at the Yardley Center Apr. 8 and a street fair on June 14.

They will be sponsored by the newly-formed Mrs. Wnuk Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Those present were: Mrs. D. Barker Cook, chairman of Bristol district; Mrs. Joseph Sprandio, Mrs. Russell Mills, Mrs. H. W. Thompson, Mrs. William M. Hosking, Mrs. Edgar Trembley, Mrs. Dean Wiedner, Mrs. James C. Harris, Mrs. William Eckstein, Miss Alberta Larzelere, Mrs. John Hennessy, Mrs. H. F. Barrus, Jr., and Mrs. Marion J. Schindler.

With the month of March nearly gone, this means that an increased effort must be made by all to provide the funds so sorely needed, it was announced. With the horrors of a natural disaster, tornadoes in the south, so vividly in our minds, and the continuing need for the blood service to our fighting forces in Korea, the call of those neighbors who are in need must be answered, it was stated.

AGE OF BEFUDDLEMENT

We sincerely hope that a certain television show last Sunday afternoon was kinescoped and will be laid away in some safe spot for the edification of future generations.

We know of no other manner in which those now unborn will be able to look back and measure the depths of befuddlement to which this present race of Americans has floundered.

National politics has many remarkable documents. Eloquence and lofty idealism has reached great heights. The Farewell Address of General Washington is a piece of writing which, reflecting as it does the long and careful consideration of two extremely able men, Washington and Alexander Hamilton, has both a charm and an inspiration rarely found. Webster's Reply to Hayne is often considered to be one of the most magnificent examples of oratorical ability in all history. The Lincoln-Douglas debates display brilliantly the relentless power of cold logic in eating like acid into fallacies and evasions.

For the record of Sunday's panel discussion to lie alongside these deathless political writings might at first glance seem incongruous—but should not the depths be recorded, as well as the heights?

Principal guest on that occasion was the brash young Senator from Massachusetts, Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., who is grandson and namesake of the brilliant orator, student, historian and political leader of a previous generation.

Senator Lodge is becoming well known to America for gifts somewhat different than those of his grandfather. He is champion seeker of political bandwagons, and principal exponent of the thesis that the one thing which is important in politics is to win. He was major domo in charge of the front office of the Dewey headquarters at Albany, back in the "we can't lose" days of 1948. Since then he has written a few pieces for the slick magazines to the effect that all this business of worrying about issues is a lot of nonsense, and that the thing to do in campaigns is to do whatever has to be done to wind up on the winning side.

At present he is the accepted head of the Draft Eisenhower movement which is seeking the Republican nomination for the General—having elbowed Pennsylvania's Senator Duff aside in the race for that post.

Senator Lodge's political philosophy is that a candidate (to paraphrase Gilbert and Sullivan) ought to say nothing in particular and say it very well.

Let someone believe we are exaggerating in making that statement, bear two points in mind. Consider first that his own explanation of his reason for backing Eisenhower for president is that he considers Eisenhower to be the only man who can lead the nation through the tangle of foreign difficulties and build a durable peace, which will thereupon permit us to reduce armament costs and get back to a stable economy. That all comes under the head of foreign policy, and Senator Lodge's statement makes it the over-riding issue of the campaign.

Now consider point number two, which is Lodge's position as set forth in his own words a year ago—quoted, by coincidence, in an article by Sokolsky about the time of the television show:

"If all we had now to consider was American opinion, we could unhesitatingly say that the freest debate on foreign policy would without doubt be good. But we cannot build a wall around the United States."

LANGHORNE, Mar. 27 — In a report which he presented to the board of directors, Neshaminy school district, this week, Dr. Oliver Heckman, superintendent, reviewed many activities, and suggested some changes.

He informed that Mrs. Margretta Fry, teacher of home economics in the high school, has asked to be relieved of responsibilities as of April 30th. The superintendent also told the board "We are faced with the problem of not being able to secure competent personnel without increasing the initial salary."

Regarding three air-raid drills in the high school this term, Dr. Heckman says in regard to 500 pupils crowding into halls on the basement and first floor: "I have never in my entire career in public school work seen more than 520 students crowded into such small quarters refrain from talking or making other noise for five minutes time. . . . I am sure that no similar adult number could assemble."

"The industrialization of Bucks county must not be advanced at the expense of home and community life," he said. "The industrialization of any area should include plans and consideration for the preservation of the home and the usual high standard of life in the community."

He stressed the need for industry.

SEVERAL HUNDRED TRAILER DWELLERS
AND TRAILER PARK OWNERS PROTEST
PROPOSED TRAILER TAX IN BENSALEM

President Says Association Formed to "Try to Beat Down Some Unfair Things Imposed On Us" — Claim $5 per Month Tax Unjust and Unfair — Say "Big Problem in Fighting Any Township Problems is Learning When Township Officials Hold Their Meetings."

EDGELEY, Mar. 27 — Several hundred trailer dwellers and trailer park owners assembled in Edgely Fire Co. station last evening to protest what they claim is "unfair taxation of trailers in Bucks county." Many spoke on the conditions of trailer camps and what could be done to improve them, while waiting for the meeting to start.

Due to the late arrival of the speakers, the meeting did not start on time. A "bull" session was held between the trailer owners and the trailer park owners. The session was presided over by David Miller, owner of a trailer park in Bristol township.

One trailer owner stated that most of the trouble comes from the health conditions, because a lot of the trailer park owners have a lot equipped to hold four or five trailers and put 40 on the lot. The answer given to this problem was that due to the bad weather conditions this winter, the work to improve the parks was not completed in most cases. It is believed that if weather permits, most park owners will do everything possible to help relieve this situation.

John Baker, president of the association, opened the meeting. He said: "We are here this evening to protest the $5 a month tax that Bensalem township is trying to place on all trailers. We, as trailer owners, have banded together and organized to try to beat down some of the unfair things that are being imposed upon us." He read a petition in part as follows: . . .

"We, the undersigned taxpayers, desire to protest the $5 a month trailer tax. It is felt that this is an unjust and unfair tax to trailer owners. Do not pass this ordinance but reconsider and pass one that is just and fair to all."

Mr. Baker said: "We must fight for our rights as American citizens or we will wind up in a corner. The $5 tax ordinance has passed the first reading and will have the second reading on April 2nd. If the petition is not signed the tax ordinance is sure to go through."

The following officers were introduced by Mr. Baker: Charles O'Hara, Oxford Valley Trailer Park, as vice-president; Harry Bates, Liberty Bell Trailer Park, secretary.

Anders Bengtson, a trailer owner, said: "A committee should be appointed in each township in Bensalem."

EXPORTING SHAKESPEARE
For 45 years, since as a young man of 30 he bought his first Shakespeare First Folio at auction in London for 3,600 pounds, A. S. W. Rosenbach of Philadelphia has been able to indulge his passion for collecting and dealing in rare books.
As an outstanding bibliographer and writer he has subsequently been known to book collectors everywhere. Now the Rosenbach Company, of which he was the founder, has disposed of his famous collection of four Shakespeare folios, several quartos, and the first edition of the Sonnets, published in 1609, and early printings of single plays before the folios and other desirable editions.
These volumes, 73 in all, go to Europe at a price reported to exceed $1,000,000.
Selling rare Shakespeare editions abroad is hardly comparable to carrying coals to Newcastle! But it does sharply reverse the trend of valuable art and literary objects in finding their way to rich America. Happily this collection is not to be broken up. Its purchaser is Dr. Martin Bodmer, a Geneva banker, and it will adorn what is reputed to be the world's best private library.
The sale leaves this country far from bereft. It has five Shakespearean collections said at least to equal that of Dr. Bodmer. They are in the Folger, Harvard, Yale, Huntington and Boston public libraries.
It is possible to imagine the mixed feelings of the learned Dr. Bodmer when he sits some day in his library with a paper cutter in his hand and on his lap the 1609 first issue of the first edition of "Troilus and Cressida," the only uncut volume known that was printed in the bard's own day.
Handet's haunting question will be nothing to him. For relief he might stroll to the window and look at Mont Blanc.
EASING A HEADACHE
Another headache of home-makers, especially novices, is about to be eradicated.
The fifth annual plastics exhibition being held at Philadelphia has an answer for the women who has had many a breakfast (or other meal) ruined because the muffins wouldn't come unstuck from the pan.
It seems there's a muffin tin in the future that muffins will not stick to, and it will not require greasing. That goes for a future bread pan in which the bread will not stick to the bottom, and perhaps a rolling pin that will not pick up the dough.
The trick will be done by a special finish made with a plastic, "teflon" tetrafluoroethylene resin. There's a catch, however. The non-stick kitchen utensils will not be on the market for several months. Commercial applications are still in the development stage.

Paterson Exhibit Is Set Up Locally
uses for the nationally-advertised product "Patapar."
The firm, started in Paterson, N. J., 67 years ago—with a new idea in America, a paper that was strong when wet and which would not go to pieces even when boiled in water. Added to this quality was the unique feature of being grease-resisting. These two unique qualities are why it is used so widely to wrap moist or greasy foods.
However, as the display indicates, the uses for Patapar vegetable parchment (now made in 179 types) have spread far afield. Today, industrial applications include the use of a special Patapar in the tiny mercury batteries used in walkie-talkie sets and hearing aids. Used also as soap mold liners, spark plug wrappers, drafting paper, and as a master sheet for "photo" sensitive reproductive methods. The new commercial type of "photo" film developing equipment has a continuous web of vegetable parchment. The display lists many every-day uses as well as special uses.
Patapar comes in sheets of every conceivable size and shape and in rolls from tiny narrow bands to sizes used on automatic packaging machines.
Up-to-date retail meat markets use rolls 18" wide with their name and a list of their delicacies printed in a continuous design on each roll.
The Paterson plant is most complete in every way. Starting with the refining of the cellulose fibres, the next step is in the making of the waterleaf on wide paper-making machines. Rolls of the pure, tasteless, and odorless waterleaf, are then fed through a parchmentizing process of sulphuric acid. The acid immediately attacks the waterleaf and dissolves the fibres into a jelly which chemists call amyloid. This jelly fills up the pores and interstices of the paper and weds the fibres into a cohesive mass. The sheet passes immediately into baths of a neutralizer and clear wash water to remove all acid and stop its action. The sheet is then dried by passing over hot steam filled rolls which restore the sheet to normal dryness.
The finished sheet is tasteless, odorless, and will not go to pieces in water, grease, fats, or oils, whether boiling or cold.
As paper is a heavy product to move about, every department is equipped with motorized lifting equipment.
Part of the complete process of manufacturing food wrappers is in the printing department. Starting with a modern art department and composing room, attractive designs are created in one or more colors. In the printing department, both letterpress and offset lithographic designs are being turned out. A visitor to this department will observe many of the famous and nationally-advertised brands being printed and packed to go to every part of the United States and many foreign countries.
The plant of the Paterson Co. can be seen from both new and old Route 13. Beautiful landscaping sets off the attractive red brick front buildings which extend about one-quarter of a mile in length. The first section of the buildings were erected in 1922 and additional sections have been added in succeeding years. Another expansion program is under way for 1952 and 1953. This includes a new building addition, installation of a new wide parchmentizing machine, enlargement of the filter plant and increases in capacity of the power house and acid reclaiming plant.
The making of paper is very much a "machine" type of business and you may stand alongside of a huge machine 180 feet long and see only two or three men attending its operation. The Paterson Parchment Paper Company gives employment to an average of 500 employees on all shifts, the majority being residents of Bristol and surrounding areas.

Yardley Plans to Raise Funds for Stricken Woman

Sclerosis Fund. Mrs. Helen Skelton, of the Yardley Methodist Church Corner Class was named chairman of the committee.

Mrs. Skelton disclosed that $155 has already been subscribed to the fund. Of this amount, $100 was donated by the church Corner Class. John O. Dice, of the Yardley Lions Club was named vice chairman; Mrs. Albert White, secretary and publicity director, and Charles Shaw of the Yardley Businessmen's Club was appointed treasurer.

Named to the executive board were Mrs. Conrad Baldwin, chairman; Ted Dougherty, John Fitzpatrick, George Jackson and Mrs. Audrey Neely. T. Sidney Caldwell 2d will act as legal adviser.

Harry Ellis of the Service League of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church announced that Delora Buena, Brazilian folk singer, will perform at the April 18 concert.

Mrs. Baldwin was named chairman for a street fair. Assisting her are Mrs. D. L. Noyes, Mrs. Mary Neely, John Tomlinson, John Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Audrey Neely, Mrs. Alex Hamell, Miss Catherine Welsh and Troy Buchanan. Meanwhile Eugene Wink reported his wife as "resting comfortably." He said a report on her condition will be available Saturday.

Discusses Bucks

Industrialization

to take an active part in community affairs and to stand ready to offer its cooperation in community projects.

Trainer, president of the Somerset Civic Association of Philadelphia, currently is leading a fight against proposed changes in the Philadelphia zoning code which would permit the locating of industries in what has been a residential community in the northeast section of the city.

"The greatness of this Nation," he continued, "is founded on the soundness of American home life and its part in community affairs. Therefore in our race for rearmament and industrial expansion, let us bear in mind the prime importance of the American home and the American people."

"Let us make industrialization an asset rather than a liability to the community."

Trainer also warned against the freezing of large tracts of land for industrial purposes, pointing out that if land is allowed to remain undeveloped for a period of years, there is a resulting loss in taxes.

He said many areas in the northeast section of Philadelphia now would have homes if the land had not been limited to industrialization only, forcing builders to construct homes in less desirable areas.

"If the Planning Commission of Bucks county follows the lead of the City of Philadelphia in establishing areas that are limited to industrial development only," he said, "then the communities will suffer tax-wise as well as in limitation of home and business development."

The 40 men received certificates after which brief speeches were heard by William L. Stackhouse, Leonard Roberts, Bucks County Fire Police Marshal; Joseph W. under conditions such as that without much commotion and confusion." The educational program for the period 1946-52 was reviewed in detail. Break-down in growth in teaching staff and enrollment showed that in the high school the pupil count in 1946 was 394 with 12 teachers, and this term is 571 with 26 teachers. In the elementary grades the pupil count in 1946 was 653 with 29 teachers, and this term is 1718 with 53 teachers.

"When the committee for the evaluation of the high school made its report it placed more emphasis

I do not think that we need to apologize for the quality of our staff or of instruction that is carried on in our schools. Architects Present Layout of Hospital

In the present brochure be given proper consideration in the new layout, Mrs. Reba C. Goebig, public relations chairman; E. L. Helwig, building committee chairman, and James R. Mays, hospital consultant were assigned, by the board, to this task and are to meet as soon as the plans of the new layout are available.

The statement of Congressman Karl C. King, 8th District, Penn., before the house sub-committee on appropriations, regarding hospital facilities for lower Bucks County as a critical defense area was read to the board of directors by hospital president James E. Harris as follows: "Mr. Chairman: As a long-time resident of the Bristol-Morrisville emergency defense area and incidentally, as the representative of the area in Congress, I want to affirm the great need for aid in quickly enlarging the hospital facilities in this area which is growing so rapidly.

"I shall not repeat the statistics which you already have before you in the survey submitted by the Public Health Service, in cooperation with the Pennsylvania State Department of Welfare, for it must already be apparent to you that there is real danger to the public health of this community, due to a situation caused almost entirely by defense activities.

"Hospital facilities in this area have always been short but not critical because of the nearness to Trenton, N. J., and Philadelphia. Now, however, it is becoming almost impossible to get patients into Trenton and Philadelphia because of their own immediate needs. At the same time, the need for hospital facilities in this immediate Bristol-Morrisville area have grown enormously and the predicted increase in population, during the next two years, will create a very dangerous situation if we cannot promptly build a new hospital of substantial size.

"The people of the communities have not been unmindful of the situation; in fact, before there was general knowledge of the big industrial expansion of the territory, a movement was started to build a community hospital which would meet the requirements as they then existed. More than a million and a quarter dollars were raised, mainly by the older residents. The broad support of this project, throughout the whole area, indicates that the people were willing to meet any normal community obligation; but, now they are faced with the problem of providing facilities far beyond what would have been sufficient for the normal population, in order to take care of the many thousands of people who are yet to arrive.

"The expected population increase of sixty to seventy-five thousand people as rapidly as homes can be built, is almost entirely due to the industrial expansion concerned with defense mobilization. If the people of this area and particularly the newcomers, are to be provided with adequate health facilities, it is essential that Federal assistance under Public Law 129, 82nd congress, be forthcoming by special appropriation for at least 300 hospital beds in addition to the 150 beds already planned for the normal population."

This statement was given before the house sub-committee on approval by Representative King, February 28th.

Says Road Will Be Widened and Renamed

about any such change," Mr. Sottung emphasized. He added it would be necessary for anyone seeking such change to also consult Falls township supervisors and Tullytown borough council.

According to announcement by the Levitt interests foundations were laid last week for several houses, with "framings" of such to get underway this week. "The first family will move in by May 16th," it was stated. These first houses are in the "Stoney Brook" section, on the west side of Tullytown-Oxford Valley road.

"Close to 3500 houses have been sold to the present time," Levitt officials say. The ratio is 500 to 4500 this year for "Country Clubbers" and "Levittowners." The former sell for $17,000, the latter for $9,990.

Age of Befuddlement

States and confine this discussion solely to the ears and eyes of the American people. What we say here is heard and read—and misinterpreted—all over the world—and the reaction of the world closely affects American welfare.

With that background in mind, let's turn to the TV show. Lodge, pinching for Senator Byrd who withdrew because of a death in his family, had a stormy time trying to make his position clear to the newspapermen, and to justify it to them after they understood it.

First as to his own status. While he is the number one spokesman for Eisenhower, he explained that he has no warrant from the General to act in that capacity, that what he may say does not commit the General, that it wasn't the General who appointed him, and it is not the General he is answerable to.

Asked when General Eisenhower would return to explain his position on various key issues, the Senator said, first, that he wasn't sure the General would come back at all before the convention, and second, that so far as he—Senator Lodge—was concerned he felt that the General's position was sufficiently well known on all important matters.

The rest of the program then broke down to an attempt to find some one issue where Lodge himself, the campaign manager, was certain where the General stood.

Senator Lodge conceded that he doesn't know the Eisenhower position on the sensitive subject of compulsory FEPC. In the matter of the current request for an appropriation for foreign aid, Eisenhower himself apparently wants all the amount asked, while the Republican Senators, including Lodge, think the program should be closely scrutinized and probably reduced.

As to the General's position on what should be done in Korea, Lodge admitted his entire ignorance. With reference to past history there, Lodge said he had a sort of impression that Eisenhower wanted more done in pushing this conflict towards victory than the Truman Administration was willing to do, but not so much as General MacArthur recommended.

Even on the points where Lodge was rather glib, and where, as a matter of fact, he appeared to have memorized his lines, he was quick to explain that he had neither authority to speak for Eisenhower nor definite knowledge of what was in the General's mind; and that whatever he had to say therefore was little more than a guess.

He kept saying, for example, that the "growth of General Eisenhower's stature in politics" (or words to that effect) was reaching the stage where it would interfere with the General's effectiveness in NATO, and that it might be the General's "own particular effectiveness" (again, or words to that effect) already had been completed so far as European organization was concerned—the point being that presently, in his opinion, Eisenhower will be able to come back home to campaign without being accused of deserting his important assignment abroad.

Now, stop and reflect what all this means.

Here is the acknowledged head of a movement to name the next President of the United States, at a time of utmost urgency—and he himself concedes that he had no authority from the man concerned to act in that capacity. He concedes moreover that he knows, in detail, virtually nothing of the candidate's views on matters which he himself asserts to be the most urgent of all present issues. He is on record as believing that the most important issues of all should never be mentioned!

When you reflect on the matter, is it not absolutely appalling to consider that any such issue of imagination and make believe and false-fronts might be taken seriously?

Have the Americans fallen to such a stage of confusion and helplessness and mental fog that they are willing to contemplate with equanimity the idea of a president being chosen under such terms?

Are General Eisenhower himself, and his sincere followers—of whom doubtless there are more than a few—themselves fully aware of the stultifying end picture which a presidential race under such conditions must inevitably leave for posterity?

TWO JUDGES HONORED
BY MEMBERS OF BAR*Skit on Court Procedure of Over 100 Years Ago
Much Enjoyed*DINNER IS SERVED

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 27 — Two judges, Edward G. Blester and Edwin H. Satterthwaite, were honored by 45 members of Bucks Co. Bar Association recently. On that evening a skit on court procedure of more than 100 years ago was enjoyed.

Samuel S. Gray, president of the Bar, presided at the testimonial dinner, in honor of the two judges, held at the Bucks County Inn.

President Judge Hiram H. Keller, William H. Satterthwaite, father of Judge Satterthwaite, and Isaac J. Vanartsdalen, who has been a neighbor and lived next door to Judge Satterthwaite's paternal family, here, for many years, were among the speakers.

A skit, which was taken from a play, depicting a court scene in 1828 and written more than a century ago, delighted the lawyers and trio of judges present. Assistant District Attorney Donald W. Vanartsdalen was chairman of the one-act play presentation committee.

Sitting on the "theatrical bench," were "Judges" Edwin S. Conro, J. Franklin Hartzel and T. Sidney Cadwallader.

Wilbur H. Vandine served as the attorney for the plaintiff and Assistant District Attorney Donald W. Vanartsdalen served as the Court Crier. Taking part in the argument court procedure were William Heefner, Emanuel H. Klein and Pearce H. E. Aul.

Absent were Webster S. Achey and J. Leslie Kilcoyne, who are on vacation jaunts and couldn't possibly attend, and several others.

P. McGEE GRADUATES FROM "SUB" SCHOOL

Paul Melvin Returns From Tour of Duty Aboard The "Saipan"

SEDGWICK A RECRUIT

Recently graduated from the basic enlisted course of the Naval Submarine School, New London, Conn., and assigned to duty with the Submarine Force, Pacific Fleet, was Patrick J. McGee, engineman, third class, USN, of 338 Magnolia avenue, Bristol township.

Paul Melvin, seaman, USN, of 2111 Wilson avenue, has returned to the United States after a tour of duty aboard the aircraft carrier USS "Saipan" with the Navy's Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean. The primary purpose of the exercise was to increase combat readiness and to familiarize ships' crews with operating conditions in frigid climatic conditions. Throughout the entire cruise "the enemy" made simulated submarine and surface attacks on the group, thereby utilizing the latest techniques in modern warfare.

Undergoing recruit training at the U. S. Naval Training Center, Bainbridge, Md., is John W. Sedgwick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Sedgwick, of 554 Locust street. Sedgwick, who attended Bristol high school, entered the naval service Feb. 19th. Before entering the Navy, he was employed by the Manhattan Soap Co. This initial training includes instruction in such fields as seamanship, fire-fighting, gunnery, signaling, and other courses designed to make the recruit well-versed in every phase of Navy life. Upon completion of 11-week training period at the recently re-activated training center, graduates are assigned to duty stations with the fleet or at navy shore stations, or are sent to service schools for advanced technical training.

HQ. FEAF, TOKYO, Mar. 25—Capt. Walter A. Fagan, Jr., Bristol, Pa., is serving with the Far East Air Forces in Tokyo in the intelligence directorate. He has served in FEAF for the past 36 months. Capt. Fagan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fagan, Bristol. His wife, Helen, and their daughter, Martha, three, also live in Bristol.

SAMPSON AIR FORCE BASE, N. Y., Mar. 25—Pvt. Morris A. Smith, Jr., and Pvt. Ross A. Danis, Jr., have completed four weeks of Air Force indoctrination training. Air Force officials announce.

Before completing training here, they will also attend classes in psychological and chemical warfare and will be instructed in the proper use of firearms. They will complete indoctrination training at Sampson on or about April 19th.

Pvt. Smith is the son of Morris A. Smith, Jr., 411 Court A, Bristol Terrace II. Pvt. Danis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross A. Danis, 429 Buckley street, Bristol.

Sardines are packed closely in a can because the fish are cheaper than the olive oil in which they are packed.

MORRISVILLE TO HAVE MORE PARKING METERS*To Install 35 More, Making
A Total of 160 in That Borough*RECEIVED $6953 in '51

MORRISVILLE, Mar. 27 — Councilman Robert O. Warwick, police committee chairman, revealed Saturday that 35 additional parking meters will be installed in the business district within 30 days.

The new meters will bring the total to 160. Thirty of the new meters, which will cost $70 each, will be placed on Market Street, just south of the railroad spur, between Washington Street and South Pennsylvania Avenue. The remainder are for an extension on the north side of West Bridge Street.

"The meters have proved to be very good," Warwick said. "They provide additional revenue for the operation of the borough and give all drivers an opportunity to park."

The first 125 meters were installed December 1, 1947, and were paid off in February, 1951. The 35 new meters will be paid for under the same terms for the original ones. The meter company receives half of what is taken in on the meters each month until they are paid off. There is no outlay from borough funds.

Last year the meter collections amounted to $6,953, with an additional $820 for meter fines. So far this year, $489 was collected in January, with $39 in fines, and in February $665 was collected with $105 in fines. Warwick said receipts from the meters this year would probably be in the vicinity of $8,000.

as guest. Miss Doris Penkethman will present "Style Smiles" at the meeting of Newtown New Century Club, April 2nd, in the club house. Mrs. Leroy Nixon will preside. Mrs. Elmer Doan will render piano selections. The tea committee includes Mrs. Arthur Yunker, Mrs. Norman Kratz, Mrs. Roy Smith, Mrs. Marvin V. Keller, Miss Maude B. Corbett, Mrs. John P. Gaine. "The Building of the Burma Road," a "movie," featured the meeting of Newtown Exchange Club, March 20th, in the Temperance House. F. Stewart Whittam conducted the meeting, at which time considerable discussion was participated in regarding widening of South State street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Crowther and daughter Carol, Claymont, Del., spent the week-end with Mrs. Crowther's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McElhone, Jr.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

The Coat-Tail Clutchers

WASHINGTON Mar. 27.

So far as the presidential primaries scheduled in the next two months are concerned, interest among the more astute politicians will be concentrated upon the popular vote rather than upon the number of delegates bagged. This may seem strange as it is the delegates that count in the conventions and in many states, such as Maryland, it is possible to get a majority of the popular vote and no delegates at all.

There is, however, a very clear and practical reason for this emphasis on the popular vote. Both the Democratic and Republican parties are anxious to nominate a winner. Neither has sufficient advantage over the other to justify taking a chance. Hence, it seems very unlikely that a "dark horse," by which is meant a man who has not run in the primaries, or one who ran in the primaries but failed to obtain a plurality of the popular vote, will be nominated by either. In other words, each party probably will name the candidate who seems to have the greatest strength in the country. There is no better way of determining this than by watching the popular vote in those primaries where an opportunity of measuring the leading candidates against each other is given. One of these was in New Hampshire; the most recent in Minnesota, where the Eisenhower unprecedented "write-in vote" exceeded the most optimistic expectations of his friends. The real test would have come in New Jersey on April 15. Senator Taft's withdrawal in that State has upset this prospect. There are other primaries, however, including Wisconsin on April 1.

In this and succeeding primaries the politicians most keenly concerned with the popular vote are those exceedingly influential ones who expect to run on the ticket with the presidential nominee either for Congress or some state or local office. Mostly, these are known as "coat-tail clutchers" and in the marginal states it is vital to them to have a "strong man" at the head, one upon whose coat tails they can ride to victory. On this subject Prof. Malcolm Moos, of the John Hopkins University, in a recently completed section of his forthcoming book, "The Republican Party," recalls a number of interesting facts.

For example, only once since 1888 has a national party won a presidential election without holding a majority in the lower house of the preceding biennium. The single exception was in 1948 when Mr. Truman nudged back into the presidency by the slender margin of 58,584 votes spread among the key electoral states of California, Illinois, and Ohio. Thus only once in 62 years has the party in control of the House lost the following presidential election. Therefore, the presumption, Mr. Moos thinks, is a sturdy one that success in a presidential election will go to the party that already has won a majority to the midterm congressional election. Certainly Mr. Moos is correct in this but the question he really asks is this: "How many congressmen can ride into office on the President's coat tails?"

In 1948 though Mr. Truman won almost no one rode in on his coat tails as practically everywhere he ran way behind his congressional and state running mates. Mr. Dewey ran well ahead in most close states and, though he himself lost and the House remained Democratic, undoubtedly he carried many congressional candidates in. Aside from 1948—the exceptional year—Mr.

Moos' statistics in the marginal districts in states outside the South show that an extraordinary number of congressional candidates were helped, if not elected, by the presidential candidate's vote—even when the presidential candidate himself was unsuccessful. Hence a "strong man" at the head is a conceded asset to all others on the ticket.

It can be accepted that this trenchant fact has escaped few aspirants for congressional or state office this year. It can be further accepted that with reasonable solidity the influence of this class will be used in their respective conventions to further the nomination of the candidates who most clearly seem the "people's choice." Most clearly, that is, to their self-interest. It does not seem, in the interests of Democratic local candidates this time, to have either Mr. Truman or a "dark horse" picked by Mr. Truman, as their presidential candidate. Demonstrably, Mr. Truman would be a handicap and his personal choice—Mr. Stevenson, of Illinois, for example—hardly less so. It is a situation that gives

Senator Kefauver, if he shows well in a few more state primaries, a better chance than he originally was supposed to have.
